OPTION FOR ULSTER IN NEW IRISH PLAN

LONDON, July 22.—Premier Lloyd George is considering dominion home rule for Ireland, including county option for Ulster, it was rumored in parliamentary circles today.

WOULD ABOLISH JOB OF COMPTROLLER

Calder Bill Up in Committee Probing Charges Against Williams.

With John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, appearing in person daily before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to answer charges involving misconduct of office, that committee is considering, along with the Williams nomination, a bill by Senator Calder of New York abolishing the Comptroller's office.

Senator Calder, who is a member of the committee, is urging the members to report out the measure favorably in the near future. Congressman McFadden of Pennsylvania, whom Williams yesterday characterized as a "licensed slanderer," is the author of a similar bill in the House, having already served notice on the House Rules Committee that he will seek Mr. Williams' impeachment in the event his nomination is not defeated by the Senate.

Will Resume Stand Tomorrow.
Comptroller Williams was prepared to take the stand again tomorrow, following a full day's appearance before the committee in refutation of charges made by Congressman McFadden and John Poole, president of the Federal National Bank of this city.

Congressman McFadden likewise was expected to appear as a witness against Mr. Williams today in response to the Comptroller's indignant demand that he should be summoned.

Senator McLean, chairman of the committee, however postponed the hearing until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, to enable the members to give consideration not only to the Calder bill to abolish the Comptroller's office, but also to other financial measures that are pending.

Mr. Williams indignantly denied charges of having discriminated against the Federal National Bank in depositing Government accounts, in his testimony before the committee yesterday afternoon.

He denounced as an "infamous slander" on R. W. Bolling, assistant treasurer of the Shipping Board, testimony to the effect that the Federal National Bank could obtain a much-sought deposit of funds of the Emergency Fleet Corporation by depositing itself, a large sum with the Chatham-Phoenix National Bank of New York, of which Mr. Bolling's brother was an officer.

These reports Mr. Williams told the committee he had branded as the work of "enemies of the Administration" when first brought to his attention.

He reiterated that he bore no malice toward the Federal bank, and to show that he entertained no malice he said that as late as November, 1918, he had arranged to have that bank made a depository for several small railroads with accounts ranging from $30,000 to $40,000 per month.

Mr. Williams said Poole had written him thanking him for this service which had been rendered because of the bank's valuable assistance in the Liberty loan drive.

Denies Commission Paid.
Mr. Williams denied emphatically that any commission had been paid on the sale of the Arlington property and that the firm of Williams & Mullen had been paid a fee of $25,000 for legal services, which did not constitute a commission.

He declared he knew nothing of the negotiation of the Navy Department with the firm of Winston & Co. with regard to the property.

Mr. Williams put into the record a letter from Secretary McAdoo to Senator Phelan stating that the Treasury Department acquired the Arlington property wholly for the purpose of remedying conditions. This letter showed the total amount expended by the department was $4,322,500, of which $1,000,000 was for the site.

The site had been appraised three times with an average appraisal of $1,975,000. Mr. Williams claimed, saying he believed the department was justified in paying $1,000,000 for it.

Mr. McAdoo, in his letter said neither Mr. Williams nor any member of his family had any interest in the Arlington company. He said he was "amazed to learn that a certain official of the Treasury Department is financially interested in the sale of the Arlington company to the Government."

It is needless for me to say that this is absolutely untrue. I should be very glad, indeed, if you could learn and give me the name of anybody connected with the Treasury Department concerning whom any such imputations are being made.

Mr. McAdoo stated that Mr. Williams, of the law firm of Williams & Mullen, "had never had any financial interest in Winston & Co. nor any financial interest whatever in the Arlington company or any other company connected directly or indirectly therewith."
